

Not linked with body on beach

Following information received today, police do not now link the case found in a city hotel bedroom on Wednesday with the Somerton body mystery.

The suitcase had been left at the John Bull Hotel, Currie street, City, in 1945.

Papers in it bore the name J. Carlin, Adminga, via Marree.

Among the contents was a pad on which was written verses from "Omar Khayyam."

Today police received a report from a man who knew the "J. Carlin" referred to when he was at Katherine.

The informant said Carlin had "queer tastes in literature."

His description of Carlin was in no way similar to that of the Somerton victim, whose body was found against the seawall on the morning of December 1, 1948.